ROBERT ADAM.

He Created a New Era In English Architecture.

Robert Adam (1728-92) was to English architecture what Benvenuto Cellini was to that of Italy. He was architect to the king, beloved at court, a member of parliament, and it was said of him that he "could not help adorning all that he touched." Those of the English people who dwell in Adam bouses prize them as rare jew-

Adam istroduced into English architecture a lightness, delicacy of touch and charm of proportion which at had never before possessed and which gave his name to that splendid period of architecture the style of which lasted over a century. Every-thing in a house, from the panel in a celling to the vases and gilt wood trioods and branches for lights, from nangings at the windows to a woman's bairpin holder, Adam designed

Adam got his rich, beautiful and distinctive style from the ruins of the Emperor Diocletian, at Spalato. As a finish to interiors be conceived the idea of using figures in relief upon walls, colored and adorned according to Raphael's Stanze painted flat upon the walls of the Vatican. His idea was as bold as its result was beautii. He also adopted Pompellan styles of decoration.
"Adam was artist as well as archi-ct, and his walls, ceilings and inteadornments are marvels of harmonious colors," says an architect.

"He employed no less personages than Angelica Kaufman and Zucchi to paint any of the panels and medallions let ito his cellings, and it was his habit to have carpets woven to match the pattern overhead and barmonize with color there employed. The keyned with perfect artistic fitness, ad it is peculiar for its grace and tateliness."—New York Tribune.

QUITE FOGGY.

Must Have Been Pretty Thick Back In the Old Days.

"Tass, it's foggy—quite foggy," said lesskiah Tor ybue, filling his pipe and utting vigor sisty on the stem. "But ain't nothin to the fog we had back the seventy-ni⁽²⁾. By gorry, boys, but that was a for, an' no mistake! Why, it was so thick that when I went out to the barn one night to feed the animals I had to git three o' the farm made to come along behind me an' such me through it."

"Yans," said Hiram Wigley, the egg g, "that was some fog. I remember there seventy-nine affair very ell, but it warn't a marker alongside o' the two we had in seventy-eight, when me an' Joe Sillsbee had to take plow to cut our way through to the ahouse, an', by ginger, when we t there we found the hers a settin' tid of on their nests, an' some of 'em laid eggs right on to it like as though it was made o' hay, b'gosh!"

as," put in old Granther Smoggs village patriarch, "them there two fole was dandles, an' everything you fellers says about 'em is gospel trewth, but fer real fog ye'd oughter been around here back in my young days. I tell ye they was solid, them days. Why, we boys used to set on the fence I ain't seen no fogs sence that time that we could make snowballs out of. classified as "Annie Swan and Her Have you, Bill?"-Chicago News.

The Laborer and His Hire. At a conference in New York of foreign missions boards reference was made to the increased cost of living of missionaries home on leave, which made it harder for them to get along than if they stayed in their foreign field of labor.

"Why," said the speaker, "a mission-ary must travel decently, and that re-minds me of a story of Mr. Spurgeon nd a fellow clergyman. The two were t starting on a railway journey and fr. Spurgeon's friend showed him a nd class ticket.

"'See,' said he, 'what good care I take of the Lord's money."

"See, said Mr. Spurgeon, bringing out a first class ticket, what good care I take of the Lord's servant."—
Youth's Companion.

The Don's Opinion. Fashion is as inexorable in men's as n women's dress. The undergraduate is perhaps the most telling example of this. It was so even a century ago, when Oxford led the way in adopting the new nankeen trousers that were to supersede tight breeches and top boots. Just about that period a don of Trinity et an undergraduate arrayed in all the splendor of the new fashion.

"Young man," said the don several

REDI'S EXPERIMENT.

Out of It Grew the Great Fabric of the Germ Theory. It was a fixed belief of the ancients that many living creatures could come into existence in a spontaneous fashion, to which allusion has often been made. The true beginning of the germ theory arose out of a ludicrously simple observation made by Redi, a Florentine physician, about the middle of the seventeenth century. He debated with his confreres in Florence the question of the origin of the maggets appearing in decomposing meat. The old view held, of course, that the maggots were bred within dead and potrefying substances. Redi, taking a piece of meat, covered the mouth of the jar in which it was contained with a piece of fine gauze. He beheld the flesh flies, attracted by the smell of the decaying meat, coming to deposit their eggs, after the manner of their kind, in the decomposing substance. The gauze, however, kept them from effecting this natural object, with the result that the eggs were laid on the surface of the gauze and the maggets there hatched out, while the decay of the meat went on uninterruptedly without a single magget appearing in its substance.

On this childishly simple experiment the great fabric of the germ theory of today was founded, for if the law of universal parentage applied to the case of maggots and meat it was clear, arguid Redi, that it must apply universally. Subsequent experimentation proved the words to be true, and so today, when our attention is focused upon germs or microbes so minute that we might accommodate many bundreds of thousands of them on the surface of a postage stamp, we again come face to face with Redi's first principle that each germ could only have sprung from a preceding and parental organism.-Brooklyn Eagle.

MISTAKES IN TITLES.

"Love's Discourses" Has Nothing Do With Cupid's Pranks.

It is interesting to collect certain of the instances of mistakes in regard to the titles of broks. Thus the old farmer who asked for "Edgworth on Irish Bulls" got no doubt something he did not expect, and the dainty youth who applied for. "Love's Discourses" did not really with a volume of sermons by Christophe, Love. If application is made by messenger, mistakes of a different sort may occur. An excitable boy once asked for Bishop Cocks and Hen's "Earnest Communicant;" he meant Bishop Oxenden's. Similarly by Warne's "Moral Cookery" he meant his "Model Cookery." A maid forgot all about the title of the book she had been sent for except that it was "something like tomato soup." She was served with "Red Pottage."

It may have been a fault of pronunciation on the part of the purchaser who asked for "rubber bands" that he received a copy of "Robert Burns," but it was certainly the bookseller who was at sea who referred an applicant for "Vega's Logarithmic Tables" to the "funiture department." In cataloguing booksellers frequently err. Thus Mr. Madan, the Oxford scholar, who wrote a grammar and dictionary of the Swaheli language, had those works cata-logued as "Madam Swaheli's Grammar" and in the line beneath, "Do. do. front o' the little chapel an' Dictionary." Recently, too, a book of balls outen 'em an' peg 'em Mr. Lucas', "A Swan and Her at people as they went by. Seems to Friends," giving an account of Miss Friends."-Manchester Guardian.

That Settled It.

The commissioners in lunacy were onplused. The man on whose mental condition the courts had appointed them to pass seemed perfectly sane it spite of all testimony to the contrary His every action, his every remark was rational. They were about to give up in despair when matters took an unexpected turn. "Oh, doctor, permit me to return the umbrella I borrowed from you last week," said the patient. And then, at the thought of earning their fees with no qualms of conscience, the learned men decided that any one who would voluntarily return a borrowed umbrella should be placed under restraint.

This simply proves how trifles will. ever mold our destinies.-New York Times.

He Followed Directions.

Red tape leads one to curious lengths. A writer in the Columbus Dispatch tells of a street railway car that picked up a young heifer on its fender and carried it some distance through the street.

In making out the required report to the superintendent the employee wrote in answer to the query on the blank form, "What did the wictim say?" "She was carried along on the fender and then rolled off and men away without saying a word."

The Way Out.

"Think, love!" said Mrs. Gobsa Golde. "I ordered a dinner gown, and that tiresome dressmaker has sent me a traveling suit."

"Well, what are you going to do about it?" Gobsa Golde demanded.

"The only thing is for us to go abroad again." she signed. Cleakers of said Estate are requested to make immediate payment to.

The Press Agent Proposes. "Your pulchritude is peerless. You are an astounding aggregation of fem-Inine faultlessness. Be mine!" "Sure!" responded the girl. "I never could resist that press agent language."-Louisville Courier-Journal.

Return of the Prodigal. "Who's that a-hollerin' down yander in the branch?"
